CO2 compensation

The compensation of CO2 emissions from climate projects are services provided by external parties for which ecommit accepts no liability. ecommit depends on these external parties to purchase CO2 certificates but cannot exert its direct influence on the climate projects to compensate for CO2 emissions. ecommit is only responsible for a well-considered choice of the external parties and the settlement of the agreements with these external parties to purchase CO2 certificates. Although ecommit only works with external parties that are considered reliable, results in the reduction of CO2 emissions from climate projects cannot be guaranteed by ecommit. If ecommit becomes aware that an external party cannot fulfill the agreed CO2 compensation through climate projects, ecommit will terminate the cooperation with this external party.

ecommit carefully checks the projects used for CO2 compensation based on the information and documents made available by the organization. ecommit is not liable for the correctness of the information and data made accessible by the organization with regard to CO2 compensation.

The amount of compensation of CO2 emissions and associated visual comparisons, including but not limited to the number of trees or kilometers driven by a car, are only indications. ecommit accepts no liability for the estimated calculations of the compensation of CO2 emissions. The calculations related to CO2 compensation are performed on general data. The results of the calculations are only an indication, and specific climate projects cannot be taken into account. Various factors influence the final compensation of CO2 emissions through climate projects, including but not limited to human influences, climatic conditions, drought, fires, grazing animals, and force majeure. No rights can be derived from the results of the calculations.
